

Red-line and Infill Redevelopment

Our Focus

In this collection of maps, our group's main focus was to detail the level of monetary compensation, and location of African Americans in the Fayette County area.

In our research, we wanted to highlight the areas that had the biggest disparity of income in the different census tracts.

The 1930s red-line data and the current infill and redevelopment boundary allow us to better understand the connection between Lexington's racial history of urban development and contemporary redevelopment strategies.
